DR. REINSCH ANSWERS PROTEST ON BREWERIES

Believes They Will Not Be Permitted Under American Registry If U.S. Is Dry

Dr. Paul S. Reinsch, the American Minister to Peking, has sent the following letter to the student council of the Shanghai Baptist College in reply to its protest some weeks ago against the proposed establishment in China of certain American breweries and distilleries:

Legation of the United States of America, Peking, December 31, 1918.

The Student Council, Shanghai College, Shanghai, China.

Sirs:—I have to acknowledge your letter of recent date, in the nature of a protest against the possible establishment of American breweries and distilleries in China, and to inform you that the Legation is giving the matter every consideration. Up to the present time the movement has taken no definite shape and the reports of proposed activities would seem to be greatly exaggerated.

It must be borne in mind that in case the laws of the United States are opposed to the manufacture or sale of whiskies the same would apply to most of the business centers of China which come under extra-territorial conditions, and the point has been brought out that American capitalists entering this field would probably prefer to ally themselves with an already going foreign concern rather than be put to the trouble of meeting the difficulties of organizing a company of their own.

As to the scope or actual plans, it would seem that the reports in the newspapers have been exaggerated. I am, Sirs, Your obedient servant, (Signed) Paul S. Reinsch.

Only 30 Men Fit For Service Left Out Of 10,000 When Armistice Came (Reuter's Agency War Service) London, January 10.—A striking fact in connection with recruiting was mentioned in a speech by Sir Auckland Geddes today. He said that of 10,000 men and boys employed in London newspaper offices 5,000 had joined the army, and at the moment the armistice was signed there were not 30 men fit for general service in all the London newspaper offices. That was a record which placed the press at the head of every trade group in the matter of recruiting.

FRANCE PROPOSES HOHENZOLLERNS BE EXILED TO ALGIERS

Would Banish Ex-Kaiser, Crown Prince And Other Sons

WHOLE MALE LINE

General Staff To Make Suggestion Before The Peace Conference

DELEGATES MEET

Decided Each Country Will Have One Vote In Decisions

(Reuter's Agency War Service) London, January 12.—The Paris correspondent of the National News declares that the French General Staff will propose to the Peace Conference the banishment to Algiers of the ex-Kaiser, the ex-Crown Prince and all the male members of that family on the ground that there can be no safety while the Hohenzollerns remain at liberty.

London, January 14.—The Paris correspondent of The Times states that the British Government is supporting the expressed wishes of the Dominions to be represented at the Peace Conference by two delegates as nations which have co-operated in the war, thus raising a novel point in the history of the Empire and making it a small society of nations. To Reivictual Germany

Paris, January 14.—The Supreme War Council has decided that in return for the Allies victualing Germany the latter will have to hand over all merchant-ships in German or neutral ports for the transport of food supplies, whatever their place of origin or destination. There is no question of the occupation of German ports. The question of military intervention in Poland was postponed.

The Council decided that the five great Powers should each have five plenipotentiaries, Brazil, three; Belgium, Serbia, Poland, Czechoslovakia, Rumania and China, two; and Portugal and the States which broke off relations with Germany, one. The question of the representations of Jugo-Slavia and Russia was adjourned.

However many delegates a country may have, it will only be entitled to one vote. The Dominions are to be specially represented. Apart from the delegates of the mother country, Canada, Australia, South Africa and India have two delegates each, and New Zealand and Newfoundland, one each.

London, January 14.—The newspapers give prominence to the fact that the renewal of the German armistice will be made the occasion for stiffer terms owing to the failure of Germany to comply with many of the previous conditions and the spread of Bolshevism westwards.

BOLSHEVISM SPREADING THROUGHOUT GERMANY

Prevalent In Westphalia, With Rioting Also In Munich, Dresden, Augsburg And Stuttgart

(Reuter's Agency War Service) Amsterdam, January 11.—Reports from Germany indicate that Bolshevism is spreading to Westphalia and other parts of Germany. Telegrams from Frankfurt state that the Spartacists control Düsseldorf and have stormed the prison at Münster, liberating 170 criminals. They have occupied all the newspaper offices at Mulheim on Ruhr; rioting has occurred at Dresden, Munich, Augsburg and Stuttgart; and severe fighting is going on in the streets of Hamburg. Thousands of Russians in disguise are reported to be fighting on behalf of the Spartacists.

Amsterdam, January 11.—The German Provincial National Assembly elections at Brunswick and Baden show no Spartacist successes. The Frankfurter Zeitung reports that two-thirds of the police and troops in Berlin have declared against Eichhorn. The police headquarters have been removed to Charlottenburg.

SUPER-ZEPPELINS BUILT BY BRITISH ADMIRALTY

Will Have Range Of 8,000 Miles And Carry Crew Of 25

(Reuter's Agency War Service) London, January 13.—A big program of airship construction by the Admiralty includes airships with a gas capacity of 2,500,000 cubic feet with a range of 8,000 miles, a speed of 65 to 70 miles an hour, a lifting capacity of 60 tons and carrying a crew of 25 officers and men. Plans have been laid for building even bigger ones. The first of the super-Zeppelins will be launched towards the end of the year. It is stated that they are being primarily built for sea-patrol and observation work and will be stationed on the coast.

Authorities regard the airship as possessing several advantages over aeroplanes for long distance journeys in endurance and the lifting of heavy weights, while they afford passengers greater comfort and accommodation. The present record for a British airship is 1,420 miles when in the air for 61 hours. This vessel carried a crew of 15 officers and men.

Intuence Of Story-Teller On Mind Of Chinese People Discussed By Mr. C. Kliene

Part Played By Traveling Entertainers Described And Story Of 'Land Of The Peach Bloom'
Told At Royal Asiatic Society

The influence wielded by the Chinese story-teller and the part he plays in moulding the Chinese mind was described before a meeting of the Royal Asiatic Society yesterday afternoon by Mr. Charles Kliene. Mr. Kliene related a legend of the third century, B.C., "The Land of the Peach Bloom," first put into writing by Tao Ch'ien, 365-427 A.D.

Mr. Kliene opened his lecture with an interesting sketch of the Chinese professional story-teller, the Shuo-shu-ti who, he said, equipped with a pair of castanets, a little drum and a pot of tea, will hold forth in the streets for hours at a stretch entertaining the old and the young. The stories told cover a wide field. Some story-tellers make the historical novel their speciality; taking delight in recounting the doings of the mighty warriors of ancient times; while others prefer the supernatural and tell of spirits, good and evil, of goblins and ghosts, and fairies, of foxes, weasels, rats, snakes, scorpions, and what not that become endowed with the power of transforming themselves at will into any shape or form—into beautiful maidens and handsome youths—to benefit or injure mankind.

Stories of filial piety, of wifely devotion, of domestic life, of official careers, of adventures in unknown and impossible lands, of feats performed in the air, under the water and in the ground, of piracy and brigandage, of Buddhist and Taoist priests, and satires and skits are all popular, but the favorite theme—and here we find the touch of nature that makes the whole world kin—is the love story. Love stories full of tenderness and passion, with happy and unhappy endings; stories that set the heartstrings vibrating, or fill the eyes with tears; stories of human felicity or human woe; they are the ones that appeal most, and the experienced Chinese story-teller knows well how to tell them.

In a country where the masses are uneducated, the oral transmission of ideas and thoughts is the only way of reaching the people, and since much of the history and traditions, as well as the literature of China, is so transmitted through the medium of the public story-teller, he is a potential influence in the moulding of the Chinese mind and an important factor in Chinese sociology. It is doubtful whether this fact is sufficiently realized or not, nevertheless, what is noble, what is great, what is worth imitating in life, and what ought to be shunned, the story-teller does put before the people in a manner that sticks to the memory, and they go forth and repeat what they hear to others.

The story in the lecture came from a story-teller; it was first put into writing by Tao Ch'ien, 365-427 A.D., and deals with an incident said to have happened during the reign of Shih Huang-ti, in the Third Century B.C. Briefly, a fisherman making his way homeward one evening sees a patch of light at the foot of a mountain; approaching, he finds the light issuing from a tunnel which he enters. The tunnel leads to a beautiful country of sunshine and fragrant flowers. The fisherman steps into this country and behind a bamboo grove discovers well-built houses inhabited by people like himself but strangely clad. He is well received, entertained, and invited to remain; but being anxious to return home to settle his affairs before finally making himself one of them, he is allowed to depart, after having been feasted and told that this is the Land of Peach Bloom, where some fugitives from the tyranny of Shih Huang-ti had found a retreat and become immortals. The fisherman, on returning to his native place, is taken for a lunatic, is roughly handled and cast into prison. Eventually, when he is released, he decides to return to the Land of Peach Bloom, but fails to find the way there, and thus loses what the Gods had offered him.

The story itself, Mr. Kliene said, is told in true Confucian style, and the Land of Peach Bloom is just such a place as the Confucian poets and scholars would make it. The scenes follow in easy succession and the contrasts are very striking, but the Land of Peach Bloom, as a place, like the fabulous island of Utopia described by Sir Thomas More, is only to be found in dreams. Taking the story as an allegory pointing to a condition or state of society in which men can dwell in peace and concord by co-operating with each other for the common weal, and upholding the principles of liberty, fraternity and equality, it presents an ideal perfectly legitimate to aspire to and at the same time it teaches some important lessons. In the Land of Peach Bloom, however, we are told there are no evil deeds, and unrighteousness has no place. That is a state of perfection which mortals can never hope to attain to. To exclude evil from our midst is more than we can do, and since perfection is beyond the limit of the round of earthly things, the utmost we can strive for is to reach the stage of the least imperfect. A Chinese thinker with a metaphysical mind once said to Mr. Kliene: "We are here not so much to suppress that which is evil as to practice that which is good; let us not concern ourselves with the evil, for if all be good there can be no evil." That seems to one to be only suggesting another road to the Land of Peach Bloom.

Chinese ontology is founded on the philosophy of the Yin and Yang, or the Dual Principles of Nature; the same inevitable dualism which Emerson says "bisects" Nature, and which is very tersely illustrated by the Chinese proverb which asserts that every stick has two ends. Good and evil are like the opposite ends of the stick; with our limited vision it is impossible for us to see how the one shall be cut off while the other alone shall remain.

In the end, the fisherman loses his abode of perfection, his paradise, nevertheless, to be regained. This shows how vain and futile it is to seek for that which is not, and to aspire to that which is not attainable.

Those who have taken an interest in the study of comparative folklore have doubtless found among the ancient traditions of most nations legends and allegories bearing on this same question, told in more or less the same strain, and sounding the same keynote, the keynote in man's yearnings to reach a state of perfect bliss. It is the high-unremitting pulse of the soul beating for perfection and immortality.

GERMAN BANK CASES BEFORE COURT AGAIN

The application of W. Pucker, former manager of the Austrian Lloyd, for the release of certain monies from the safe of his firm now in court was based and dismissed yesterday in the Mixed Court. British Assessor Grant Jones and Magistrate Kwan heard the application. Appeal was also refused and Pucker was told that he was very lucky to have escaped commitment for contempt of Court by Assessor Grant Jones.

In opposing the application on behalf of the Hongkong and Shanghai Banking Corporation, which had obtained judgment against the applicant for Tls. 8,866, Mr. G. H. Wright pointed out that the judgment still remained unsatisfied. No steps were taken to get the money at the time of the judgment in view of the statement of Pucker that he had no further interest in the Austrian Lloyd.

Pucker was then examined by Mr. Wright and admitted that he kept books for the Austrian Lloyd till November, 1918, and that as agent of the firm he was drawing a salary of $1,200 until last October, notwithstanding which he refused to accept service when the claim was brought by the Hongkong and Shanghai Bank. He further admitted that when the action was filed in March, he drew six months' salary in advance but did not do this to prevent the bank from getting the money.

Mr. Masso, representing the Bureau of Liquidation of the Deutsch-Asiatische Bank, then examined the witness, who admitted that when he applied to the German bank for money he stated that the monthly requirements of his firm would be: Chinese staff, Tls. 150; maintenance of manager and family, Tls. 600; clerk and family, Tls. 200; 25 ship officers, Tls. 100 each per month; allowance for 60 men in town, $10 each per month; hospital, doctor and medicine, Tls. 500; and the sum of Tls. 2,000 for needy Germans in Tientsin. But applicant had kept Tls. 1,200 per month instead of Tls. 600, counsel pointed out.

In answer to the Court, Mr. Masso said that about Tls. 8,000 was found in the safe of the Austrian Lloyd which had been moved under Pucker's instructions to the home of Pucker's laundry man in Hongkong and about $250 worth of Bank of Territorial Development notes, which were not good for the present.

Judgment for plaintiffs was rendered yesterday in the Mixed Court in the case of the Deutsch-Asiatische Bank against Dr. Krusen, claiming $6,345.61 for money advanced by the bank to the defendant. The defendant had deposited with the Court the sum of $2,100 and claimed to set off under Article 273 of the German Civil Code a credit in his favor with the bank on a Marks account. He further pleaded a verbal undertaking with Mr. Gutschke, former manager of the bank, not to require payment until the conclusion of peace so long as the interest on the overdraft was paid regularly.

Besides the Pucker and Krusen cases, five other claims against enemy subjects were heard yesterday in the Mixed Court before Assessor Grant Jones and Magistrate Kwan and judgments were rendered in favor of the plaintiffs; the Bureau of Liquidation of the Deutsch-Asiatische Bank. A sixth claim, that against Fraulein A. Schliertorst for $101.75, was withdrawn.

The cases heard and adjudged in favor of the plaintiffs were against Frau H. Richard for $800; Frau Is. Becker for $330.75; Richard Boncken for Tls. 4,055.15; G. Heichel for Tls. 5,154.47 and Captain R. Zoller for $1,542.60.

WAR AID TO PROHIBITION, SPEAKER TELLS W.C.T.U.

Returning American Soldiers Will Fight Liquor Traffic, Says American School Head

The influence that returning American soldiers will have in the fight against intoxicating liquors in the United States was forecasted yesterday in a lecture given before the Women's Christian Temperance Union at Union Church Hall by Mr. Guy Stockton, principal of the Shanghai American School. Mr. Stockton told of the precautions taken against drinking both in army camps and in the fighting zones and declared every trained soldier would be a fighter for prohibition.

"Never in the history of the world has the democratic ideal been so prominent; never have the people been so fired with the zeal to serve; never have ideals of strong bodies, pure hearts and clear minds been so in ascendancy, and never has there been more universal insistence on the evil which temperance works to all these high aspirations," said the speaker. "Through the medium of the great war, the people of the world have gone to a temperance school and many of them, such a number as the world has never seen before, are learning their lesson well."

Mr. Stockton traced the history of temperance societies and lauded the parts played by the women and the schools of the United States.

Mr. Stockton then examined the witness, who admitted that when he applied to the German bank for money he stated that the monthly requirements of his firm would be: Chinese staff, Tls. 150; maintenance of manager and family, Tls. 600; clerk and family, Tls. 200; 25 ship officers, Tls. 100 each per month; allowance for 60 men in town, $10 each per month; hospital, doctor and medicine, Tls. 500; and the sum of Tls. 2,000 for needy Germans in Tientsin. ## RHINELANDERS SEEK TO PLACATE BRITISH

Children Shake And Kiss The Hands Of Soldiers Of The Occupation Force

MEN DOFF HATS TO OFFICERS

People Obsequious To Enemy Holding Power Of Life And Death

By Philip Gibbs (New York Times)

Outside Cologne, December 7.—For some days now British troops have been in Germany and this morning were just outside Cologne. Their way led them through scenery utterly different from anything they met on the marches through France and Belgium, and perfectly German in its character, so that at once after crossing the frontier they were startled by the change.

From Malmédy to Montjoie and from Montjoie to Duren on the way to Cologne they have been climbing up steep hills covered with fir forests, going along the edge of deep ravines round which narrow tracks wind in sharp curves, perilous for transport, and dipping down into villages, as old-fashioned as those in the pictures of Grimm's Fairy Tales, smugling in valleys below high sandstone cliffs.

Yesterday I passed columns of English and Scottish troops on the march through the forest of Duren and on the high winding roads of the plateau. Duren is a great forest, dark and mysterious in its depths, between long glades of tall, straight columned firs, with their sweep of green foliage above masses of scarlet bracken.

All was silent in those woods. No living thing stirred as the British went by, glancing sideways up glades through which the sunlight slanted. One might meet with women in such a forest and red-capped gnomes and the wolf which said "Good morning, my dear," to Little Red Riding Hood.

Beyond this forest the cliff fell steeply to brown streams rushing swiftly over boulders—a wild country for the men to pass. The motor lorries slipped on the edge of ravines and only the skill of the drivers saved them from toppling over. The pack mules trudged up slowly, and the men, with rain splashing on the waterproof capes and with tunics already soaked, went silently through the forest and over the hills, breathing hard because of the steep climbs. Their packs weighed heavy and their march was long.

I saw them billeted in some of the German villages where the cottages and inns and farmhouses were built of black beams and plaster like those in Tudor England, with old ruins on hills above. Everywhere I found that the villagers had received them in a friendly way and that yellow-haired children stood in groups round them as they picked their horses and unloaded their transports.

War is over, but children are children, and it is difficult to nourish hatred in one's heart when small boys and girls come to shake one's hand or kiss it, and when little maids with pigtail curtsey as one passes and in a wayside inn the serving maid wishes one a good appetite before one eats and stands around with anxious eyes to observe the effect of the food she cooked.

Every man of high or low estate doffs his hat when he meets a British officer, and if one stops to make inquiry of the German civilians, many of whom were German officers until a week ago, they answer with the utmost politeness.

Defeat and the revolution with which they are threatened and fear of worse things that may happen have made the German people painfully anxious to abide by the rules of occupation and get on the right side of those who now have powers of life and death over them.

This fear and the tremendous relief that bloodshed has finished, and perhaps also hope of a new era of liberty released from Prussian militarism, has changed amazingly the attitude of these people of the Rhineland toward the English. There is no more "Gott strafe England."

Again and again during the last few days I have heard German people say, "thank God the English have come," and I believe they say that with sincerity.

The German middle class are more afraid, it seems, of Bolshevism than of the British soldiers, and during the time of political crisis and social revolution people with property and those who desire law and order rather than anarchy of the mob were anxious for the presence of the British as being the lesser of two evils, though tragically enough.

Thus the Burgomaster of Cologne sent yesterday a special message, asking that the troops should enter earlier than previously arranged, and some machine-guns were sent forward. This is to restrain the low element of the civil population from pillaging and rioting, as they have been doing, I am told, in Cologne, and as certainly they have done in Duren and other places.

At Duren, now occupied by British, the first act of the mob, partly made up of revolutionary soldiers and partly of disorderly youths, was to break into the barracks and loot them. The German officers were disarmed and degraded, but not otherwise hurt, and there was a good deal of window-smashing and pillage until the Burgomaster enrolled a town guard, mostly made up of ex-soldiers in plain clothes, with arm bands and loaded rifles.

Describes Entry Into City
Amsterdam, December 8.—The Cologne Gazette in its issue of Friday describes the entry of the British into Cologne.

A cavalry regiment in marching equipment, with baggage and machine-guns, approached along the Duernstrasse, while along the streets of the old ramparts marched other troops, which assembled at the Aachen Thor.

The public remained calm and reserved with some exceptions, mainly youths, the Gazette asserts. "Involuntarily the mind recalled the picture presented a few days earlier by our returning troops, and the comparisons drawn were truly not unfavorable to our field grays."

Several detachments of cavalry moved along the Luxemburgerstrasse, the officers with drawn swords, the men in steel helmets, some with lances with miniature red and white flags. They halted at the Luxemburger ramparts, where they placed numerous baggage wagons and armored motor cars. Here, too, it was mainly street youths who gathered. Several British officers went to the Town Hall to discuss with the Burgomaster the next measures to be taken.

Tuchuns, Far From Cowed, Are Making Threats Again

Chang Tso-lin Demands Parliament Carry Out Will Of Its Military Dictators

(From Our Own Correspondent)

Peking, January 11.—It has been thought for some time past that the militarists believed that their day was more or less at an end, but it was hardly expected that they would subside entirely without a struggle. That they are by no means content to sink into obscurity is becoming now very obvious. They are warning the Peking Parliament of the necessity of remaining faithful, assuring it that faithfulness towards the tuchuns, which regards the Peking Parliament as its own special creation, will bring dire results, and assuring it that if the worst comes to the worst it will be provided for if it is faithful.

The active agent in these assurances and threats is General Chang Tso-lin who has just let the members of the Peking Parliament know that its business is to support the tuchuns in every circumstance. It appears that some time ago the tuchuns were prepared to upset the whole of the northern administration, including President Hsu, in order to maintain the tuchun position. The President, to their mind, was far too conciliatory towards the south, and during their recent meeting at Peking they had practically decided to replace him when the Allied aide-memoire gave them a very pointed hint that they had better allow of an accommodation with the South. In considerable chagrin they left Peking, not without mutterings, such as those recorded at the farewell banquet given by General Chang Tso-lin to the Manchurian members of Parliament.

The chagrin still remains, and General Chang has let it be known to the members of Parliament that it is their duty to remain faithful to those who appointed them. In the alternative, dire consequences will follow. If, however, it should come about that the settlement with the South involves the dissolution of the Peking Parliament, then, just as the old Parliament has found sanctuary in Canton so the present body may find sanctuary in Mukden. Thus General Chang threatens us with a renewal of the old struggle, but with new protagonists. Fortunately though the Peking Parliament is the creation of the tuchuns, it is not entirely its creature. More than once it has shown considerable independence of the tuchuns, as in the case of the opium scandal, and more lately in the case of Mr. Tso Ju-lin.

General Chang's warnings and comfortable words to Parliament are evidently not unconnected with certain of his other activities. He has recently imposed a super-tax on land produce, and it is reckoned that with the proceeds of this tax he will be able to maintain troops in excess of the number sanctioned by the Ministry of the army. His action is similar to that of General Ni Shih-chung in Anhui, where an addition has been made to the Salt Tax, entirely without the authorisation of Peking. It is reckoned that this excess tax will bring in $300,000 a month, and that on this sum General Ni will be able to maintain troops that, if necessary, can support him for a long time against all comers when he declares his independence of Peking. This both he and General Chang Tso-lin have threatened to do if the coming settlement is not one of which they can approve.

There is apparently only one way of dealing either with General Chang Tso-lin or General Ni Shih-chung, or indeed with a number of other military men who are inclined to be dictatorial and reactionary, and that is to dismiss them. The great fear of course is that should be worth while taking under certain circumstances. If the Allied Powers would send a further communication to the Government and to the Southern leaders, having the same import as the aide-memoire but much more strongly worded and containing a hint that the Government would be backed up in a substantial manner by them if it found obstruction in its path, the tuchuns would subside. The fear of disorder in the areas from which reactionaries might be removed, though it is real enough, is probably unnecessary. A recent case illustrates this. General Yang I-teh, Police Commissioner at Tientsin, with powers over a wide area, was supposed to be the only man who could keep order in the Tientsin district. He had done so for years, and his antecedents were such that he was supposed to have great sway over the lawless elements. Recently, on the virtual demand of the Allied legations, he was removed from office, and a successor appointed from Peking whose antecedents are quite reputable. This successor is maintaining admirable order, and General Yang I-teh is not minded so far as the peace and quietness of the district are concerned. It is probable that if men like General Chang Tso-lin and General Ni Shih-chung were removed there would at least be as much order in the districts over which they rule as there has been in the past.

The alternative is that the reactionary militarists are not going to accept any settlement that does not give the real rule of the country over to their hands.

China Political Notes From Chinese Press

The Extraordinary Session of Parliament in Canton declared Wednesday that as the Chinese Peace Commission was appointed without the approval of the Parliament, it is not representative of the Chinese people. Therefore treaties signed by this commission would not be acceptable to the people. A copy of the message will be sent to the Peace Conference in session at Versailles.

The Administrative Council at Canton has officially informed President Hsu Shih-chang of the appointment of the Southern peace delegation to Shanghai. Mr. Tang Shao-yi will head the delegation and will be accompanied by General Chiang Shih-chao, General Hu Han-min, Mr. Li Ji-hui, Mr. Tsen Yen, Mr. Kuo Chun-shen, Mr. Liu Kwang-li, Mr. Wang Pei-chuan, Mr. Pang Yin-yi, Mr. Yao Min-lan and Mr. Li Ji-yin. This body will proceed to Shanghai first and then await for the settlement of the Shensi and Fukien problems before participating in the peace conference.

The Government has decided to make further concessions on the question of the locality of the peace conference and has telegraphed Mr. Chu Chi-chien, the chief of the Northern peace delegation at Nanking, to consult Mr. Tang Shao-yi, the Southern delegate, and decide the place between themselves.

The President has received a memorandum from the overseas Chinese in America, asking the dissolution of the Peking Parliament as the first step towards the solution of the domestic question.

The installation of a set wireless apparatus at the Admiralty House at Shanghai has been completed, according to a report of Admiral K. K. Lang, the Chief of the Admiralty at Shanghai.

ALLIED LEGATIONS AGREE TO RELEASE SALT FUNDS

Matter Now In Hands Of Bankers, Only One Of Whom Has Acted

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Peking, January 16.—The matter of handing over to the Government the sum of two millions of dollars, being part of the Salt Reserve, for conservancy work in China, has not yet been decided. The Allied Legations having agreed, the matter was then referred to the bankers, one of whom has agreed while the others have not yet given their consent.

In connection with the Customs surplus of $12,000,000, the Legations have agreed to hand it over to meet the Fourth Year Internal Loan payments, the salaries and expenses of the Chinese diplomats abroad, the conservancy work in Canton, the salt revenues in Shanghai and, finally, the expense of removing the Chinese troops from the front.

As the South is administering the salt gabelle in the southwestern provinces, the disposal of the Northern salt revenues is considered a matter in which the South is not interested. With the Customs, however, the question is a different one. Consequently the Legations have fixed January 25 for handing over the Customs surplus and the Consul representatives in Canton are notifying the Southern Government that it will be done on that day unless the North and South have previously reached an agreement, in which case the Legations will be agreeable to hand over the surplus in accordance with any agreement between the North and South.

Peking Opinion Supports Burning Of Opium Stock

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Peking, January 16.—The objections raised in Shanghai to the burning of the opium stocks there is not understood in North China, as the loss, compared to handing over the drug to the Red Cross, is only $225,000, not $5,000,000, because prices in China have been ridiculously inflated. The ordinary sale price is about $3,000 a chest. The Anti-Opium Committee, missionaries, legations and prominent persons in North China are convinced that the President's plan of burning is the best that could be effected as proof of the determination to suppress the opium traffic.

Staff reports received today state that Siberian troops are advancing along the Northern Railway westward of Perm and a column is advancing towards Kassin. ## Rifle Association Meeting

The Shanghai Rifle Association held its annual general meeting at Town Hall yesterday afternoon. The following were elected to serve on the committee for 1919: Messrs. W. J. Monk, O. L. Albert, W. T. Rose, W. J. E. Forsyth, G. Y. Woo, Dr. S. A. Ransom and Mr. A. M. Colliac. The latter was re-elected secretary.

Mr. B. C. Pearce, Chairman of the Shanghai Municipal Council, presided. The meeting passed four resolutions proposed by Mr. W. T. Rose after one or two of them had caused spirited discussions. The Association voted to reduce the value of the monthly prize cups from $20 to $15, that no money be paid to winners of monthly cup competitions; power to the committee to select prizes rather than the individual winners, and finally that no money prizes be awarded to any successful competitor.

Chairman W. J. Monk of the committee expressed the thanks of the Association to Dr. S. A. Ransom for the use of his office for committee meetings; to the Boy Scouts, for efficiently acting as scorers; to Mr. S. B. Stevenson, who audited the accounts, and to Mr. A. M. Colliac, who is the secretary-treasurer.

After the reading and confirmation of the minutes of the last annual meeting, Mr. Pearce said: Before asking you to adopt the report and accounts for 1918 a brief summary of the events may be of interest to you.

Your role of membership now numbers 237 members of the defense forces of Shanghai and absent members on war service, four members of the Swiss Rifle Club and two non-volunteers. In accordance with the resolution passed at your last meeting, membership of the Association is only open to Allied or neutral subjects.

The annual rifle meeting was satisfactory in every way and I am sure we all congratulate Dr. Ransom on winning the grand aggregate for the third time with a score of 684 points out of a possible 720, thereby showing that his rifle marksmanship is interfered with by his keenness and ability in getting on to the target. I think I am right in stating that in winning this coveted prize three times, constitutes a record.

The ladies' prize competition has lost none of its glamor and there were no less than 172 ladies represented, this coveted trophy was won by Q. M. S. Rose for Mrs. Y. Hori. The Shanghai championship with British, 503 Rifle, which was inaugurated in 1914, has always excited the keenest interest and competition. It is as you know conducted along precisely the same lines as the King's prize at Bialley. The honor went to Mr. A. M. Colliac, your indefatigable secretary.

Both the National Rifle Association medal and the Aethusa cup went to the Shanghai Scottish S.V.C., and I am sure we all congratulate this S.V.C. unit in having such excellent shots as Private J. Macbeth and Private C. E. M. Thomson.

The all-comers championship was won by our friend and old stager, if he will permit me to call him so, Dr. Ransom.

Your charity program, which I trust has come to stay in connection with your different shooting competitions, proved not only a source of enjoyment and interest, but added in no small measure to the funds of different war charities.

The interport match which since 1917 has proved of such public interest has on account of the war been abandoned since 1915 but it is sincerely to be hoped that 1919 will once again see this interesting match resumed. Your committee has been in communication with Hongkong.

Turning to your accounts, these I venture to say are stated in such a clear and business-like manner as to need no comment from me except that there has been a small loss of $179.77 on the general expenses of the Association for the working of the year.

This loss is almost entirely due to the fact that this year in view of the general drain on the pocket of the community, we refrained from asking those old friends of the Association who have for many years been generous contributors to our prize fund to favor us with their usual subscriptions, believing that they were undoubtedly finding many other channels for their generosity which should take priority.

To make the annual meeting more or less self-supporting we were obliged, therefore, to cut down materially the number and value of the prizes offered and it was very gratifying to find that the members were in agreement with this decision as evidenced by the fact that the entry list was considerably larger than last year.

I might point out that part of our cash surplus has been expended in the purchase of 150 sterling, placed in fixed deposit with the Russo-Asiatic Bank. This has been done in order to some extent to average up the 1450 purchased in 1915 at what seemed then to be a very advantageous rate of exchange but just now does not look quite so satisfactory. However, there is no prospect of the Association becoming so short of liquid funds as to necessitate converting this deposit back into silver and we hope that we shall in the end come out on the right side, even if we have to wait a long time.

A savings account and current account have been opened with the American-Oriental Bank, from whom we get slightly better terms as to interest.

This is all that I need say as regards the accounts, which will later on be formally put to you for acceptance.

There is one other matter which is giving your Committee grave concern, and that is the question of ammunition.

The stock is now entirely exhausted and for the moment we are rather uncertain as to the source of further supplies. As you know, for some years past the Association has been permitted by the chief ordnance officer at Hongkong to purchase limited quantities, usually in lots of 10,000 rounds, from the Government stock there, but we have not been able to obtain any reply to inquiries made during the past two months as to the prospect of a continuance of this supply.

It may be that changes in the personnel of the headquarters staff at Hongkong are responsible for our failure to get any reply to our letters so that we are left in doubt as to whether we are to be permitted to purchase more or not. An alternative would be to approach the commandant of the S.V.C. with a request that he include in his requisition for the supply for the Corps a certain quantity to be earmarked for this Association, as was always done prior to the war, but discontinued when it became a little doubtful if the S.V.C. would receive its own full allowance.

This ammunition question is receiving the close attention of your committee and we hope soon to reach a satisfactory solution which will relieve our anxieties in connection with the annual meeting in the spring.

With these few words, gentlemen, I beg to propose the adoption of the report and accounts, but before putting it to the meeting, the committee will be pleased to answer any questions related thereto that any member may like to ask.

The report and accounts were adopted unanimously.

Shanghai Revolver Club

The annual report of the Shanghai Revolver Club shows that, on account of the restriction on the export of ammunition from America, there were only four competitions held during the year. The all-comers championship, the club championship and the ladies championship competitions had to be abandoned. The following members won the experts medal and bars: Medals—A. E. Puddicombe, S. B. Stevenson, E. W. Stagg, Mrs. J. E. Harverson, B. S. Chapman, 2 bars; Kadourie, 1 bar.

Since the Club was formed in 1911, there have been 61 competitions held for the Experts medal and bar. 51 members qualified for Experts (special), 51 members qualified for Expert and 384 members qualified for Marksman which includes 3 lady experts and 31 ladies in the Marksmen's Class. During the year 20 members also passed the preliminary test for the Marksmen's Class.

The Club has 2 ranges either for service revolvers or miniature rifle shooting and is lighted by electric light for night shooting. There is also an experienced instructor to teach beginners with the automatic pistol, revolver, or rifle. Location of Club: 2 Route de Say-Zoong, 3 minutes from either the Bubbling Well or Say-Zoong train terminus. Application for membership may be made to the secretary. Annual subscription is $19 which includes instruction for the wives and daughters of members.

Crucible Of War Gave Manhood New Halo

By Winifred Black
The pale boy with the great, puzzled eyes told me about it the other day, sitting out in the sunshine, in a snug corner of the quiet porch.

He's just back from France, and I would never know him at all for the same boy who marched away so gay, so careless, so self-confident, so light-hearted and boyish. He's only twenty-one now, but he isn't a boy any more. He's a man—all through, and you can't look at him without seeing that.

"What's changing you so, Jim?" I said to the man just back from France. Jim smiled a little, sighed a little;

then he made up his mind to laugh, and laugh he did.

"Well," he said, "I am changed, that's true, but I didn't know you'd notice it so soon. How do I seem different?"

I tried to tell him—but somehow I couldn't.

It was intangible, not to be put into words, but just as real as the sunshine and just as much to be felt as the tang of approaching winter in the air.

They find themselves

"Well," said Jim—when I had tried to tell him what I meant and had given it up as a bad job—"I guess I know what you mean. All the boys are like that. They laugh just as easy, but there's something under the laugh that never was there before.

"You see, when a fellow's twenty or twenty-one he's always dreaming about the wonderful things he's going to do in the world, and he wonders what's the matter with all the old fellows that they never seem to amount to much.

"Oh, yes, they support their families, and pay their bills, and do well enough in a humdrum, unromantic sort of way; but say, wait till he gets started, and he'll show 'em.

"He has to get left and go broke and make a fool of himself, and fall down and get up again for twenty years before he learns what's the matter with him—and by the time he's learned the habit is set and he can't change if he wants to.

"Over there' we learn all those things in just a few little months.

"We learn all there is to know about fear and courage, and faith and suffering.

"We see brave men die like little, confiding children, and we see tough specimens smile into the face of the nurse—and go west' without a whimper.

"A Wonderful World"

"We learn that it isn't the clothes the man wears or the way he gets his hair polished or what club he belongs to that counts.

"The only place I ever knew men to be like that is in the Turkish bath.

"I'll never forget the first time I saw a great financier wrapped up in a sheet with a towel full of cracked ice on his head. I couldn't believe my own eyes, and he kept whimpering about a draft on his big toe, and I couldn't believe it.

"There he was away from his bank, and he didn't have a check-book, and no one who knew him, and the attendant was grouchy and wouldn't bring him a drink of water, and a little nobody at the other end of the steam room got all the attention because he knew how to tell a funny story—and told it while he was steaming. It wasn't a very good one, either—I've told it myself a good many times, and he missed the best point of it.

"Well, that's the way we are 'over there.' No one cares who you are or who your father was or whether your mother 'entertains' or not. They don't even care whether you have a good tenor voice or how many polo ponies you keep at home.

"Well, yes, the voice might help you a little; that's something that is really yours, and it comes in handy in the hospital or on rainy nights in camp, but—eh, well, I guess we look to each other 'over there' just as a boy looks to his mother most of the time.

"I tell you, this is going to be a wonderful world for a while. It's going to be full of a lot of young fellows full of hope and 'pep' and enthusiasm and nerve—as a young fellow should be—and they'll have the wisdom of experience, which they couldn't get in forty years of ordinary life, along with it.

"I believe, now this war is over, we're going to do some things that will astonish the inhabitants of Mars."

And I looked at his young, worn face, and into his deep, tragic, joyous eyes—and wondered what kind of a world he and his splendid comrades will make of it—when they get to work on the job.

of dreams which is illustrated by another remarkable example of an actual dream. Professor H. V. Hilprecht, famous as an Oriental scholar and explorer, had a dream in which the solution of an obscure difficulty connected with two Babylonian inscriptions was presented to him by an ancient Babylonian priest who appeared in the dream.

Here the mind of the dreamer would seem to have worked its way to a logical conclusion which in its waking state it had been unable to attain.

Human dreams are instinct with imagination, as is shown by the case of the romancer R. L. Stevenson, who asserted that he had no trained his dreaming mind by self-suggestion that it furnished him with the conception of some of his best stories. Anybody who can do that may make a mine of his dreams.

By Rudyard Kipling
Across a world where all men grieve,
And grieving strive the more,
The great days range like tides and leave
Our dead on every shore.

Heavy the load we undergo,
And our own hands prepare,
If we have parley with the foe,
The load our sons must bear.

Before we loose the word
That bids new worlds to birth,
Needs must we loosen first the sword
Of Justice upon earth;
Or else all else in vain
Since life on earth began,
And the spent world sinks back again
Hopeless of God and Man.

A people and their King
Through ancient sin grown strong,
Because they feared no reckoning
Would set no bound to wrong;
But now their hour is past,
And we who bore it find
Evil incarnate held at last
To answer to mankind.

For agony and spoil
Of nations best to dust,
For poisoned air and tortured soil
And cold, commanded lust,
And every secret woe
The shuddering waters saw—
Willed and fulfilled by high and low—

Let them re-learn the Law.
That when the dooms are read,
Not high nor low shall say:
"My haughty or my humble head
Has saved me in this day."
That, till the end of time,
Their remnant shall recall
Their fathers' old confederate crime
Availed them not at all.
That neither schools nor priests,
Nor Kings may build again
A people with the heart of beasts
Made wise concerning men
Whereby our dead shall sleep
In honor, unbetrayed,
And we in faith and honor keep
That peace for which they paid.

Marvels Of Dreams An Absorbing Subject

By Garrett P. Serviss.

"A friend says she had a dream, the incidents of which occupied a period of three days. But I have been told that a dream lasts only a second. We are greatly interested, and would like an explanation.

"D. F."

There are differing views with regard to the actual time consumed by dreams. It is probable that many are extremely rapid, while others may occupy nearly as much time as the incidents would require if enacted in real, or waking, life. But your friend's experience shows that the mind when engaged in dreaming is not bound by the usual measures of the lapse of time.

Very extraordinary examples of a similar kind are on record and they always make good reading for thoughtful persons. For instance, a French savant—Maury—relates that a bed pole having fallen on his neck while he was asleep, he dreamed, during the moment of time required for his awakening, that he was passing through the tragic scenes of the French Revolution, that he was arrested, condemned to death and taken to the scaffold, where the knife descended upon his neck, and at the shock he awoke, to find the bed pole lying across him, the evident cause of his dream.

The remarkable thing here is the wonderful quickness and fertility exhibited by the mind in inventing, instantaneously, a story to fit the suggestion given by the peculiar impression on the sleeper's nervous system that the blow of the falling pole had produced.

The Dreamer's Mind

If one represents to himself the successive incidents of the Reign of Terror, such as passed through Maury's dreaming mind, and the preparations at the scaffold, they all appear crowded together, and the time element is consciously shortened almost to a point, or practically eliminated; but to the dreamer there appears to be no hurry, each incident has its full development, and time its full sway.

Then, think of the dreamer's mind, although set in motion by the sudden blow, apparently ignoring that at first, and leaping back to the beginning of a long chain of events and scenes which lead up gradually to the one thing to which the whole phantasmagoria was due, viz, the blow on the neck.

If a person in waking life receives a suggestion that acts like a trigger in setting loose a train of thought, or serves as the germ of a logically developed story, he requires time, and generally a good deal of time, to bring the successive ideas and scenes clearly before his mind's eye, but the dreaming mind, while seeing everything in an instant, nevertheless is able to distinguish all details, and to spread them out in their proper proportions on a time scale as ample as that indicated by our clocks and calendars.

Inherent Powers

It is a marvellous exhibition of the inherent powers locked up in the mind, and it shows how very far short our ordinary cerebration falls of utilizing those powers. It suggests that, if freed from the trammels to which its association with the brain subjects it, the mind might be independent of what we call time. But these things lead to very deep waters, which, moreover, are overhung with darkness.

There is another interesting aspect

Hongkong Market

Messrs. Moxon and Taylor's report of January 10, has the following:

Our market is in a depressed state due to the dearth of money in Shanghai which has knocked all the life out of the market there and a large amount of Shanghai stocks were imported into this market on the 3rd instant and it rather looks as if no great upward reaction will take place until, at least, after Chinese New Year, when it is to be hoped that money will become a little easier. A few investment stocks are in steady demand but business is very restricted.

Banks.—Hongkong Banks are wanted at 725 with sellers holding for 730.

The London rate having advanced to 1103.

Marine Insurances.—Cantons are wanted at 4405, and Unions at 4410.

unchanged from last week.

cash, with $104 and $106 done for March. Malabone have enquired at $37 1/2.

Urals at 33 1/2, Kallans at 47 1/2, and

Tronohs at 49 1/2 are all unchanged from last week. Langkats have buyers at Tls. 21 at which a small business has been done.

Docks, Wharves and Godowns.—

Kowloon Wharves have been the medium of a fair business round about $111 for cash. Hongkong Docks have come to business at $157. Shanghai

Docks are quoted at Tls. 134 for cash with Shanghai selling at Tls. 139 for March.

Land, Hotels and Buildings.—

could both be placed at quotations.

Humphreys have come to business at $740. Hotels are wanted at $90.

Points at $72.
